Program Description
Earn 4 credits this January with Hunter College's Arabic Language in Jordan program. This January, beginning Arabic students can travel to Amman, Jordan to study at the Qasid Institute. Amman is a vibrant, diverse, and safe Arab capital. Qasid is a highly regarded Arabic language institute used by US government programs such as Fulbright and the Critical Language Scholarship (CLS). Students will live in gender-segregated apartments near the institute. They will study the equivalent of Hunter's Arabic 101 in a private class and be eligible to enroll in Hunter's Arabic 102 course in the spring 2012 semester. Orientation and placement exams will take place on December 28. Classes begin on December 29. The program will end on January 25, 2012.

Language Courses
ARB 101 – Beginning Arabic

Visits and Excursions
In addition to classroom study, students will make 3 trips during their stay: a two-night trip to Wadi Rum and Petra and day trips to Ajloun Castle and the Dead Sea. Students will be in class 3 hours a day, 5 days a week. Each small class will have two instructors assigned to it. Students will also have access to Qasid Institute's general events such as singing and poetry night and guest lectures.
