

Outcomes for Latin major

Upon completion of this major, students will be able to:

1. Read with understanding Latin at an advanced level from a wide range of periods and genres; this should include the ability to translate, and to recognize and explain features of morphology, grammar, and syntax using the appropriate technical terminology.
2. Read with understanding ancient Greek at an elementary level; this should include the ability to translate, and to recognize and explain features of morphology, grammar, and syntax using the appropriate technical terminology.
3. Analyze how a Latin work's style and structure contribute to its meaning by applying techniques of stylistic and rhetorical analysis to works in Latin or English translation.
4. Discuss in broad outline the significant literary, cultural, and historical developments of Greek and Roman civilization, with appropriate attention to textual evidence, material culture, archaeological evidence, and modern critical approaches.
5. Pose meaningful questions of ancient texts, archaeological evidence, and/or material culture, and design projects to answer these questions that utilize current research methods and resources in the field.

Outcomes for Greek major

Upon completion of this major, students will be able to:

1. Read with understanding ancient Greek at an advanced level from a wide range of periods and genres; this should include the ability to translate, and to recognize and explain features of morphology, grammar, and syntax using the appropriate technical terminology.
2. Read with understanding Latin at an elementary level; this should include the ability to translate, and to recognize and explain features of morphology, grammar, and syntax using the appropriate technical terminology.
3. Analyze how an ancient Greek work's style and structure contribute to its meaning by applying techniques of stylistic and rhetorical analysis to works in ancient Greek or English translation.
4. Discuss in broad outline the significant literary, cultural, and historical developments of Greek and Roman civilization, with appropriate attention to textual evidence, material culture, archaeological evidence, and modern critical approaches.

5. Pose meaningful questions of ancient texts, archaeological evidence, and/or material culture, and design projects to answer these questions that utilize current research methods and resources in the field.

Outcomes for Greek and Latin major

Upon completion of this major, students will be able to:

1. Read with understanding Latin and ancient Greek at an advanced level from a wide range of periods and genres; this should include the ability to translate, and to recognize and explain features of morphology, grammar, and syntax using the appropriate technical terminology.
2. Analyze how a work's style and structure contribute to its meaning by applying techniques of stylistic and rhetorical analysis to works in Latin, ancient Greek, or English translation.
3. Discuss in broad outline the significant literary, cultural, and historical developments of Greek and Roman civilization, with appropriate attention to textual evidence, material culture, archaeological evidence, and modern critical approaches.
4. Pose meaningful questions of ancient texts, archaeological evidence, and/or material culture, and design projects to answer these questions that utilize current research methods and resources in the field.

Outcomes for Classical Studies major

Upon completion of this major, students will be able to:

1. Read with understanding Latin or ancient Greek at an intermediate level from a range of periods and genres; this should include the ability to translate, and to recognize and explain features of morphology, grammar, and syntax using the appropriate technical terminology.
2. Analyze how a work's style and structure contribute to its meaning by applying techniques of stylistic and rhetorical analysis to works in Latin, ancient Greek, or English translation.
3. Discuss in broad outline the significant literary, cultural, and historical developments of Greek and Roman civilization, with appropriate attention to textual evidence, material culture, archaeological evidence, and modern critical approaches.
4. Pose meaningful questions of ancient texts, archaeological evidence, and/or material culture, and design projects to answer these questions that utilize current research methods and resources in the field.

Outcomes for Classical Archaeology major

Upon completion of this major, students will be able to:

1. Read with understanding Latin or ancient Greek at an intermediate level from a range of periods and genres; this should include the ability to translate, and to recognize and explain features of morphology, grammar, and syntax using the appropriate technical terminology.
2. Gather, analyze, and interpret information from a variety of sources and points of view by gaining knowledge of major monuments and artifacts from a wide range of societies across the ancient Mediterranean world.
3. Discuss in broad outline the significant literary, cultural, and historical developments of the ancient Mediterranean world, with appropriate attention to textual evidence, material culture, archaeological evidence, and modern critical approaches.
4. Pose meaningful questions of archaeological evidence, material culture, and ancient texts, and design projects to answer these questions that utilize current research methods and resources in the field.