

Our Mission

The mission of the Communication Sciences Program and Hunter College Center for Communication Disorders is to:

- 1) develop professionals who will meet the healthcare and educational needs of the metropolitan New York area through prevention, assessment and management of communication disorders in children, adolescents and adults from culturally, ethnically and linguistically diverse populations;
- 2) produce clinically based research that will advance knowledge of normal and disordered processes of communication across the lifespan;
- 3) provide educational and clinical services to the College and the metropolitan New York City communities; and,
- 4) provide leadership in clinical practice to the professions of Speech-Language Pathology and Audiology as a whole.

What insurances do we accept?

Nearly all third-party insurance carriers are accepted, and, we offer sliding scale and scholarships for those in the community without.

Who we are & the services we perform

We are a clinical training facility for graduate students in speech-language pathology and audiology. As a nationally accredited program by the Council on Academic Accreditation we adhere to all standards and guidelines set forth for state-of-the-art speech-language and audiology professional practices.

All services of the Center are provided under the direct supervision of New York State licensed and American Speech-Language-Hearing Association certified speech-language pathologists and audiologists.

What do we do?

We provide high quality speech, language, and hearing screenings, assessments, therapy and other interventions to people of all ages, backgrounds and special needs.

Center hours vary from semester to semester but attempts are made to accommodate school-age and work schedules.

The Center is ADA compliant; all services are strictly confidential, adhering to HIPAA privacy regulations.

Who do we serve?

People of all ages and backgrounds with speech, language and/or hearing disorders

We can help:

Diagnose and treat children or adults with hearing loss or suspected hearing difficulties including auditory processing issues

Assist children with speech and language delays and disorders

Treat children or adults with stuttering or fluency problems

Assist children or adults with voice disorders

Evaluate and treat children or adults with communication disorders due to special needs, medical issues, and genetic syndromes.

Prepare children or adults with foreign dialects that interfere with English intelligibility.
