The Status of the Afro Latino/a Communities – An Agenda for 2007

The panel of Afro Latino Leadership will address the status of Afro Latino communities in Latin and Central America. They will provide an update of the accomplishments, struggles, present and future initiatives that communities of African descendants must address to continue improving the conditions of our communities globally. The panelists represent activist leaders who have been critical to articulating the needs of African descendants in multinational governmental and international community forums. Their efforts have contributed to making the lives of their communities "visible" to the global community.

As the institutional knowledge and experience of the Afro Latino institutional networks, NGOs, and leadership have increased their role in advising not only their constituencies but also national governments, ministries of education, health, national security, police and prison management also have broadened and increased. As they seek to effect real change in their societies and communities, it is important that they have think-tank experiences for better strategic planning, assessment, and monitoring for past and current programs to understand what has been effective, and what needs to be either re-thought, or 're-engineered' for better and more effective sustainable future programs.
