

Global Afro Latino and Caribbean Initiative
presents

REDEFINING AFRICAN AMERICAN “What’s at Stake?”

Does the term African American include or exclude the diversity of African descendant populations that now reside within the nation’s borders?

Does the term African American need to be redefined?
If so, why and towards what concrete goals?

Keynote:

- ◆ James Early Director of Cultural Studies and Communication at the Center for Folklife Programs and Cultural Studies at the Smithsonian Institution

Panelists:

- ◆ Clarence Lusane School of International Service, at American University
- ◆ Glyn Jemmott Nelson México Negro Asociación Civil
- ◆ Basil Wilson Senior Vice President and Provost, Office of Academic Affairs at John Jay College for Criminal Justice
- ◆ Miriam Jimenez The Afro-Latino Project
- ◆ Agustin Lao-Montes University of Massachusetts at Amhurst

Moderators:

- ◆ J. Michael Turner Co-director of the Global Afro Latino & Caribbean Initiative, professor of History at Hunter College, CUNY
- ◆ Zakiya Carr-Johnson Inter-American Development Bank, Social Inclusion Trust Fund Social Programs Division (SDS/SOC).

Friday - February 3, 2006
4:00 -7:00 p.m.

The Lang Recital Hall
Hunter College, CUNY
695 Park Avenue, Room 424 Hunter North
New York, New York 10021

(Enter on 68th Street between Lexington Ave & Park Avenue, North side of the street)

For more information please call 212.772.4285 or email inquiries_galci@hunter.cuny.edu

Free and Open to the Public.

Co-sponsored by the Franklin H. Williams Caribbean Cultural Center African Diaspora Institute and the Global Afro Latino and Caribbean Initiative

This event made possible with generous funding from the Ford Foundation and Inter-American Foundation.

