Voice refers to the form of a verb that indicates when a grammatical subject performs the action or is the receiver of the action. When a sentence is written in the active voice, the subject performs the action; in the passive voice, the subject receives the action. In academic writing, it is generally preferred to choose an active verb and pair it with a subject that names the person or thing doing or performing the action. Active verbs are stronger and usually more emphatic than forms of the verb “be” or verbs in the passive voice.

Active: The award-winning chef prepares each meal with loving care.

Passive: Each meal is prepared with loving care by the award-winning chef.

In the above example of an active sentence, the simple subject is “chef” and “prepares” is the verb: the chef prepares “each meal with loving care.” In the passive sentence, “meal” is the simple subject and “is prepared” is the verb: each meal is prepared “by the award-winning chef.” In effect, the object of the active sentence becomes the subject in the passive sentence. Although both sentences have the same basic components, their structure makes them different from each other. Active sentences are about what people (or things) do, while passive sentences are about what happens to people (or things).

USING THE AUXILIARY VERB “BE”

The passive voice is formed by using a form of the auxiliary verb “be” (be, am, is, are, was, were, being, been) followed by the past participle of the main verb.

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>Active</th>
<th>Passive</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>He loves me.</td>
<td>I am loved.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>We took our children to the circus.</td>
<td>The children were taken to the circus.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>A thief stole my money.</td>
<td>My money was stolen.</td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>

Notice how the “be” auxiliaries change the meaning of the verbs from action to condition or from “doing” to “being.”

He remembers his grandmother. ("he" is doing an action: remembering)
His grandmother is remembered. ("she" is in a condition: being remembered)

In this way, the past participle functions very much like an adjective; it describes the subject.

The woman is pretty. She is a pretty woman
The woman is married. She is a married woman.
VERB TENSES USED IN ACTIVE AND PASSIVE VOICE

The following is a summary of active and passive forms of all verb tenses. Remember that in active forms the subject of the sentence is the person or thing that does the action. In passive constructions, the verb is performed by someone or something other than the subject; often, the action is done to the subject by someone else.

Present Time

- Simple Present

  Use the simple present tense to make a generalization, to present a state of being, or to indicate a habitual or repeated action.

  Active | Passive
  --|--
  base form or “-s/-es” form | am/is/are + past participle
  Professor Brown teaches at Hunter. | Sonia is taught by Professor Brown.
  All humans are equal. | All humans are created equal.
  Maria eats in the cafeteria. | The cafeteria is cleaned

- Present Progressive

  Use the present progressive to describe an ongoing activity or a temporary action.

  Active | Passive
  --|--
  am/is/are + -ing | am/is/are + being + -ed/-en
  The students are learning Spanish. | Classes are being conducted in Spanish.
  I am working at McDonald’s until I finish school. | He is being hired to work at McDonald’s.

- Present Perfect

  Use the present perfect to describe an action occurring in the past but relevant to the present, or extending to the present.

  Active | Passive
  --|--
  has/have + -ed/-en | has/have + been + -ed/-en
  Hunter has opened a language institute in East Harlem. | The language institute has been opened to relocate students off the main campus.
Hunter has offered E.S.L courses for twenty years. E.S.L. courses have been offered since the beginning of Open Admissions.

- Present Perfect Progressive

Use the present perfect progressive to describe an ongoing action beginning before now and is still relevant to the present.

Active: has/have + been + -ing
Passive: has/have been + being + -ed/-en

Hunter has been awarding BA and MA diplomas for over one hundred years.

Note: Because of awkward construction, the perfect progressive form is not used in the passive voice. Instead, an adverb may be used to show continuing action: “We have been repeatedly scolded for being late.”

Past Time

- Simple Past

Use the simple past to indicate a general or habitual action occurring in the past or at a specific time in the past.

Active: base + -ed or irregular form
Passive: was/were + -ed/-en

Our family bought all our clothes at Sears when I was young.
The clothes were bought by my mother.

On my fifteenth birthday, my uncle gave me one hundred dollars.
The money was given to me to buy new clothes.

When I was in high school, my friends and I drove to the mall on weekends.
We were always driven to the mall by my friend's older brother.

In informal conversation, speakers of English often express habitual behavior in the past using the modal “would.”

Active: would + base
Passive: would + be + -ed/-en

We would usually eat burgers in the food court.
Most of the french fries would be eaten before we got to the table.
• Past Progressive

Use the past progressive to indicate an ongoing action in the past or an action continuing through a specific past time.

Active
was/were + -ing

Mary and Paul were dating in those days.

Passive
was/were + being + -ed/-en

One afternoon, Mary was being kissed by Paul when her mother passed by.

• Past Perfect

Use the past perfect to indicate an action completed prior to a particular time or before another action in the past.

Active
had + -ed/-en

Mary's mother was shocked because she had forbidden her daughter to date.

Passive
had + been + -ed/-en

Mary had been kissed many times before that day.

• Past Perfect Progressive

Use the past perfect progressive to indicate a continuing action that began before a past action or time.

Active
had + been + -ing

Mary had been trying to tell her mother about Paul for a long time.

Passive
had + been + being + -ed/-en

• Future Time

• Simple Future

Use the future to indicate an action that is expected to take place at a future time.

Active
will + base

Paul and Mary will marry in June.

or
am/is/are going to + base

Mary is going to wear her grandmother's gown.

Passive
will + be + -ed/-en

They will be married by a priest and a rabbi.

or
am/is/are + going to be + -ed/-en

The gown is going to be adjusted to fit Mary.
• Future Progressive

Use the future progressive to indicate an action in future with emphasis on continuing action.

Active

will + base + -ing

Passive

will + be + being + -ed/en

Mary and Paul will be spending lots of time on the beach. Note: Not used in the passive voice.

• Future Perfect

Use the future perfect to indicate a future action expected to be completed before another future action or time.

Active

will + have + -ed/-en

Passive

will + have + been + -ed/en

By their wedding date, they will have saved enough money to buy a house. Note: Not used in the passive voice.

• Future Perfect Progressive

Use the future perfect progressive to indicate an action projected to have been going on for a while before a time in the future.

Active

will + have + been + -ing

Passive

will + have + been + being + -ed/-en

When they celebrate their first anniversary, they will have been living together for a full year. Note: Not used in the passive voice.

WHEN TO USE PASSIVE VOICE

Although active voice is generally preferred in academic writing, passive voice is acceptable under certain conditions.

Use passive voice

• to emphasize the receiver of the action instead of the doer

  Quizzes are given regularly.
  Grades for all students are averaged.
  Questions are encouraged.
• to keep the focus on the same subject through several sentences or paragraphs

My sister and I grew up and went to school in Jamaica. We were educated according to the British system. In 1997 we were given the opportunity to come to the United States. We decided to finish high school before leaving our own country. We were concerned that the education in this country might not be as good as the one we had there, and we wanted to improve our English too.

• when we do not know who performed the action:

Ray's calculator was made in Germany.

The answers have been filled in.

• when we do not wish to mention the doer of the action:

Many problems have been ignored for too long.

I was given some bad advice.

Note: This use often reveals an unwillingness to take responsibility (or place it on someone else).

Substitute: For:

“A mistake was made.” “I made a mistake.”

“We have not done enough to end homelessness.”

“You are wrong.”

• when we want to sound objective or avoid using the subject “I”
