USING MULTIPLE INTELLIGENCES TO TEACH LIFE SKILLS

Presented by:

Michael Texeira

Asst. Project Director, ASRN

In this workshop you will learn to help youth identify their potentials as well as discover that there are many ways to be intelligent. Participants will be introduced to Howard Gardner's theory of Multiple Intelligence, as well as other kinds of intelligences and ways to measure them. Participants will receive: a profile highlighting the seven smarts; Information that can be used with young people during life skills assessment and; Tips on how this material can enhance one-to-one work as well as life skills groups.
