

Foster Parent Pre-Service Training

Last updated: January 3, 2008

States have a variety of policies regarding pre-service training for foster parents. We have assembled those we were able to locate here. Note that this is not a comprehensive list of all policies.

Mandatory Training Hours

Most states require a minimum number of pre-service training hours, but the range of mandatory hours is quite large. Hours given are only for basic foster care; many states have additional requirements for therapeutic foster parents. When a specific curriculum is used, it is indicated.

- * Idaho Not less than 10 hours of training no later than 1 year following the issuance of an initial foster care license.
- * New York Requires certain content areas, but not number of hours. Many counties and agencies use the Model Approach to Partnerships in Parenting/ Group Preparation and Selection (MAPP/GPS) Pre-Certification Training Program. Although it is not required by the Office of Children and Family Services, it is the recommended selection and preparation program.

Some contracted child placing agencies require fewer hours of pre-service but have mandatory training requirements after licensing. In order to insure that all of the agencies deliver the same basics in their training, State has developed core competencies, based on the CWLA core competencies, and the agencies have to demonstrate when/how the competency is delivered.
- * Texas DFPS's Residential Child Care Licensing (RCCL) division is responsible for licensing and monitoring child-placing agencies (both DFPS and private). It is the child-placing agencies that are responsible for verifying families. RCCL requirements are 8 hours of pre-service training. DFPS requires 30 hours of PRIDE training for its homes.

* Washington Also must complete First Aid/CPR and Blood Born Pathogens course.
