Training Materials

1. The Kinship Care Practice Project at the Jane Addams College of Social Work has prepared curriculum materials intended to prepare child welfare caseworkers for engaging family members of children in the custody of the child welfare system in development of a permanent plan for the child. The materials may also be useful tools for child welfare practice and policy, generalist practice, family intervention, and human behavior courses. The six learning units are:
  - The Context of Practice in Kinship Foster Care: Formal and Informal System Constraints and Opportunities
  - The Sociocultural Contexts of Kinship Care
  - Substance Abuse and Its Impact on Family Systems
  - Convening the Kinship Network
  - Decision-Making & Family Empowerment
  - Supporting Permanent Plans

Both written materials and video segments can be downloaded from the College's website, or contact:

2. The Department of Social Work at Eastern Michigan University has developed two curricula dealing with kinship care:
  - The Kinship Training Program for child welfare workers is designed to provide factual information, sensitize workers to the strengths and needs of kinship families, and highlight strategies and techniques for developing effective helping relationships and interventions with the extended family system to support intra-familial child placements. It consists of four 3-hour modules.
  - The Kinship Caregiver Forums provide the guidelines for presentation to caregivers. Each of the nine forums provides participants an opportunity to discuss issues of concern, exchange ideas, and develop supportive networks. Each forum provides instructions for the presentation of the session as well as participant handouts. Materials are available for purchase from:

3. Berrick, J.D., Needell, B., Shlonsky, A., Simmel, C., & Pedrucci, C. (1998). Assessment, Support, and Training for Kinship Care and Foster Care. Center for Social Services Research at the University of California Berkeley.
This curriculum focuses on assessment, support, and training for relative and non-related foster parents in the State of California. It is meant to be a teaching tool for social work students but may also be a useful training manual for child welfare agencies. Chapters cover characteristics of caregivers, a quality of care assessment framework, sample caregiver training courses, minimum standards of care, practice tips, caregiver focus group feedback, and child welfare policies affecting caregivers. The curriculum is available for purchase from:

4. Cox, C. B. (2000). Empowering Grandparents Raising Grandchildren: A Training Manual for Group Leaders. New York: Springer Publishing Co.

Grandparents who have accepted the task of raising their grandchildren often need assistance navigating the child welfare system, refining parenting skills, and becoming informed of legal and entitlement issues. The author presents training sessions focused on these issues, as well as:

- Communicating with children
- Dealing with problem behaviors
- Teaching their grandchildren about sex, HIV, and drugs
- Helping the child cope with grief and loss
- Developing advocacy skills
- Helping children build self-esteem.

Assessment Tools

1. Kinship Caregiver Burden

This document highlights the implications of a research study that examined the degree of caregiver burden and social support perceived by kinship caregivers (Cimmarusti 1998). It includes implications and possible interventions for caseworkers, including suggestions for assessment techniques. Material is presented in a concise format, with implications divided into the following categories:

- "tears" in family relationships;
- the impact of the agency's involvement;
- caseworker behaviors;
- caregiver social supports;
- impact of caregiver's religion/faith; and
- caregiver-caseworker relationships.

2. A Caregiver Assessment Form from the Pennsylvania Department of Aging provides a model for some of the types of questions that might be asked in the assessment of a kinship caregiver's situation. While this instrument is specifically designed for use with caregivers of adults, many of the concerns addressed also apply to kinship caregivers of children. Available on the website of the Administration on Aging at <http://www.aoa.dhhs.gov/carenetwork/Tools.html>

Handbooks for Caregivers

Each of the handbooks listed here is addressed to a specific population of caregivers. However, each also offers some general information, and may also serve as a template for other organizations seeking to provide such a resource for their caregivers.

1. Caregiver Resource Directory

This guide was produced for caregivers of patients with medical problems. However, kinship caregivers may find some of the tools it provides to be useful, and particularly if they are caring for children with medical needs. It provides clear, concise advice on topics ranging from how to communicate with medical staff to self-care for caregivers. The guide also provides blank forms to be used for such things as assessing personal resources, emergency information, medication schedules, and other features such as a "fatigue journal" to help the caregiver track a patient's energy levels and a page of heavy paper with slits arranged to hold the business cards of physicians and other professionals. Some portions available online; hard copy available at no cost from:

2. Illinois Department on Aging. (1999). Starting points for grandparents raising grandchildren: A resource guide with information and services for grandparent caregivers. [Online]. Available: <http://www.state.il.us/aging/pub-2.htm>

This handbook was written for caregivers in Illinois, but it also contains general information and national resources. It may be useful as a model for agencies seeking to produce local handbooks

3. Lilliedahl, C., Nicholson, B. & Spencer, C. (2000) Colorado Kinship Care Resource Guide. Denver, CO: Nicholson, Spencer & Associates Training Institute.

This guide for kinship caregivers in Colorado is available for download from the Colorado Department of Human Services. This Resource Guide provides local and statewide information about organizations and programs that can serve the needs of kinship caregivers. Available: <http://www.cdhs.state.co.us/cyf/cwelfare/cwwweb.html>

4. Help for Grandparent Caregivers is a series of guides on legal status and legal issues for grandparents and advocates in New York State. Available in both English and Spanish from the Brookdale Foundation:
Help For Grandparent Caregivers
Samuel Sadin Institute on Law
Brookdale Center on Aging
1114 Avenue of the Americas, 40th Floor

Promising Programs

1. A Second Chance, Inc. is an Pennsylvania agency that supports kinship foster care, providing stability and continuity by maintaining a child's cultural identity and contact with his or her birth family. Its Point of Contact program provides direct services to families serving as kinship foster homes, helping families meet the requirements of foster care set by the county Department of Public Welfare. In addition, in cooperation with the county, the agency provides a full range of Emergency Caretaker/Foster Care services which are operated under the regulations and requirements of the Allegheny County Foster Care Task Force. Some recommended services include E.P.S.D.T. (medical screening), intensive foster parent training, crisis intervention, informative referral services, counseling, and support services. Point of Contact program services include:
  - Orientation and training of kinship foster families
  - Approval and certification of kinship foster family homes
  - Monitoring and evaluation, and
  - Re-certification of kinship foster family homes

Point of Contact also provides respite homes where foster children can be cared for up to 72 hours for traditional respite services, as well as between 24 hours and 30 days for crisis intervention, in situations where guidance is necessary to help families stay together. This includes a 24-hour confidential hotline. For information, contact:

2. In October, 2001 the Department of Health and Human Services announced the award of approximately $6 million in grants for 34 projects to develop innovative approaches to assist families and informal caregivers of older persons as well as grandparents and older relatives who are caregivers of children. These innovative grants are one component of the new National Family Caregiver Support Program established as part of the Older Americans Act. Other components include formula grants to states that were distributed in February 2001, and the Native American Caregiver Support Program grants that were awarded to tribal organizations in September 2001.
