The Hunter College School of Social Work is pleased to announce a Spring series of seminars under the auspices of the Reva Fine Holtzman Center for Field Instruction, established in honor of Hunter’s first field director. Four seminar topics will be presented during the Spring 2006 semester. Registration is open to all field instructors. Many sessions will be of interest both to newly SIFI certified field instructors and to the experienced field educator.

SPRING SEMESTER

I. Field Instruction and the Use of Metaphor with Adult Learners. When used skillfully, metaphor helps to open up the learning process and creates a mutually enjoyable learning environment. Find the metaphor that guides your teaching and creative expression.

Master Teacher: Robin Strauss, MSW, is the Director of the Mapleton Midwood Geriatric Service, South Beach Psychiatric Center. She is a past recipient of Hunter’s Outstanding Field Educator Award and teaches the Seminar in Field Instruction.

Friday, February 24, 2006
9:00-12 Noon

II. Special Issues in Field Instruction with students who are also employees in the agency (OYR students)
For new and experienced field instructors who are working with students who are also employees of the agency. Special issues in learning and teaching will be addressed.

Master Teacher: Alicia Sainer, MSW, is an experienced field instructor with extensive agency experience. Ms. Sainer is also an experienced faculty advisor working with OYR students.

Tuesday, March 7, 2006
9:00-11:30 A.M.

III. Continuing the Conversation:
This workshop is a follow up to our September presentation and for all field instructors who would like to deepen their understanding of LGBTQ issues in the field.

Master Teacher: Rachel Baum, MSW, is currently the National Program Associate Director for the New York City Gay and Lesbian Anti-Violence Project. She is an experienced field instructor

Wednesday, March 15, 2006
9:30 - 11:30 A.M.

IV. Termination: An End You Can Live With. A follow-up session for newly minted SIFI certified field instructors and a refresher for veterans who want assistance in teaching about termination.

Master Teacher: Cristy Ramirez, MSW, is currently a professional development counselor at the Hunter College School of Social Work. Ms. Ramirez has taught the Seminar in Field Instruction.

Thursday, March 30, 2006
