Free ESL Seminar: Vocabulary and Idioms

Mondays & Wednesdays from 3:00-5:00pm, June 5th – June 29th, 2017, at 1242 Hunter West, 68th Street Campus

Instructor: Jason Schoenfeld

Have you ever wondered why how a fat chance and slim chance can mean the same thing? Are you an ESL student who would you benefit from a course that helps improve both your academic vocabulary and use of idioms?

The Hunter College English Department is offering this FREE seminar for ESL-background students. All current CUNY students are all welcome to register.

WHAT ARE THE GOALS OF THE SEMINAR?

This course helps students recognize and learn key academic vocabulary words and useful idioms. Students will practice and improve their knowledge and use of new words and phrases in reading, writing, speaking, and listening.

HOW IS THE SEMINAR TAUGHT?

All class meetings will be workshop-based and offer plenty of chances for students to practice new language and vocabulary. Students will keep a personalized vocabulary journal and complete weekly quizzes and exercises to reinforce the new terms and phrases.

HOW CAN I SIGN UP?

Students can register for this seminar in person with Anna DeVita beginning on Monday, April 24th in room 1211HW, or through email at adevita@hunter.cuny.edu, or by phone at 212-772-4245. There is a 16-person limit for the seminar.

For more information about this seminar or other ESL resources at Hunter College, contact the ESL Coordinator, Paul McPherron, at pm39@hunter.cuny.edu or 212-772-5201.
