MEMORIAL

Wendell Stacy Johnson

In June, shortly after retiring from Hunter College Wendell Johnson died. His friends have written of him, "Throughout his career Wendell epitomized the scholar-teacher who was able to convey the humanizing power of English literature with wisdom and humor. Many of us were directly influenced by him in our academic careers, and we remember fondly his warm and crucial support in times of crisis. To commemorate all that Wendell stood for, we plan to create an award in his name to be given to a Hunter College English major with a special interest in nineteenth and twentieth-century literature." A memorial for Wendell Stacy Johnson will be held on Tuesday, Sept. 25 from 5:10 to 6 pm in room 714 West. All colleagues, students, and friends are warmly invited.
