

Andrew's Best Birthday Ever

By: Andrew Asaro

"Pop, pop, pop, pop!" The baseball players were chewing gum. I was by the dugout at Yankee Stadium. I thought this was great. It looked like a big field with grass carved on it. I went up stairs with my friends Thomas, Travers, Richard, Jack, Dylin, and CJ to get the food. We had wristbands so we got the food for free. I got delicious hot dogs, soda and potato chips. I asked, "What's your favorite baseball team?" Thomas, Travis, and all of my friends shouted "The Yankees!" But Richard yelled, "The Mets!" The hot dog was in my hand and I unwrapped the sliver tinfoil. We went into the bounce house.

The bounce house sounded like people, and the bounce house was filled with my friends. It looked like a castle. It was red and blue on the wall. It was loud in the bounce house. My friends were screaming, "AHHHHH!" I was feeling happy.

After the bouncy we went back to the seats to watch the rest of the game. I saw baseball players hitting home runs, and I saw a lot of people. The field was mostly was grass. I was grabbing the net because I wanted to catch a fly ball. I heard the crack of the bat, and people yelling, "Ah." And I heard the noisy baseball players sliding. And they gave me a fly ball.

I felt happy. I was thinking the other team was sad. It sounded like the fans were yelling "Ah." I was clapping because the good Yankees won. It was a great party. I will always remember it.
